

THE STRING FAMILY

The string family includes, from highest to lowest, the violin, viola, cello, and bass. Some are held under the neck and others are set on the floor. All the instruments are played with a wooden bow strung with horse hair. This family likes to sit up front. They far outnumber the other instruments in the orchestra.

